

Frederick Fausz

Name	Frederick Fausz
Professional Occupation	Professor of History
Institution	University of Missouri
Website	http://www.umsl.edu/~umslhistory/faculty/fausz.html
Short Description	Professor Fausz is a professor of American History at the University of Missouri. He has produced many articles and books on the history of indigenous peoples of America, Colonial America, and the history of the Mississippi Valley. In his affidavit for White Fausz noted that: “public awareness of the dangers of smoking (including its addictive nature) was so widespread since the 1950s “a thoughtful and prudent person would have had to consciously ignore prominent warnings in deciding to begin smoking cigarettes...”; thereby directly referring to the legal liability standard of a thoughtful and prudent person. ¹
Education	Ph.D.
Major Fields	American Indians, Colonial America, Fur Trade, Lewis & Clark Expedition and Era, French Creole Culture in the Mississippi Valley, Research Methods
Major Publications	Monument School of the People: A Sesquicentennial History of St. Mary’s College of Maryland, 1840-1990 (1990), The Day Kikotan Became Hampton: England’s First Indian War, 1609-1614 (2010), Founding St. Louis: First City of the New West (2011)
Number of Cases	2

Case ²	Year	Manner of Involvement
1. White v. R.J. Reynolds	2000	Affidavit
2. Waterhouse v. R.J. Reynolds	2005-2006	Affidavit

¹ See 109 F. Supp. 2d 432, 432.

² Compiled with the following online databases: <http://legacy.library.ucsf.edu>, <http://tobaccodocuments.org>, <http://lawschool.courtroomview.com/experts>, & Westlaw.